

Bureau of Cannabis Control Publishes New Distributor Fact Sheets

The Bureau of Cannabis Control recently published two new fact sheets on its website as a resource for industry stakeholders, licensees, and the general public. The facts sheet help everyone better understand the different responsibilities of the cannabis distributor (Type 11) and the cannabis distributor transport only (Type 13) licensee by providing a list of required procedures and guidelines for various distribution activities. As background, a Type 11 distributor licensee is responsible for several things such as transporting cannabis goods between licensees, arranging for testing of cannabis goods, and conducting the quality assurance review of cannabis goods. On the other hand, a Type 13 licensee is limited to only transporting cannabis goods to licensed cultivators, licensed manufacturers, and licensed distributors.
